1. Information and Tickets
   North Main Street and East Avenue
   Courtesy of the Sunoco station
   Tickets will be available at this location beginning at 4:00 pm.

2. Candles
   South Main Street and Park Gardens
   Candles, a symbol of hospitality throughout the years, have also become a symbol of our tour. These giant candles, ranging from 10 to 16 feet in height, provide a spectacular sight during the holiday season. These candles were donated to the Historical Society by Warren Hitchner.

3. Crafters and Artisans
   First Baptist Church South Main Street
   Beginning at 4:00 pm artisans from the South Jersey area will have their crafts on display and for sale. These artisans will be available for information about their respective art.

4. Holiday Market
   South Main Street (street closed to vehicles for pedestrian access)
   From 4:00 pm to 9:00 pm over 45 market vendors and food trucks will be available. Enjoy the many opportunities to prepare for the holiday season!

5 PM to 9:00 PM

5. First Baptist Church
   South Main Street
   A modest beginning with 14 members, the First Baptist Church has grown in membership with members of this congregation actively ministering in the community, the nation and throughout the world. The church has its taproot deep in the colonial period of our country's history. The current building stands upon one acre of land which was purchased in 1811 for the sum of $180. Church records indicate that the building was built around 1826. The following performances will be held in the church sanctuary:
   At 5:00 pm Andrew Valentine, pianist.
   At 6:00 pm Salem Oak Singers.
   At 6:30 pm Rob Roy Duo, mandolin and guitar.
   At 7:30 pm Misty Fiske and Blythe McDonald, organ and piano.
   At 8:30 pm Woodstown High School Chamber Choir.

   On the church's adjacent grounds at 8 pm, there will be a community Christmas tree lighting and sing-along with the Woodstown High School Chamber Choir performing.

6. First Baptist Church Fellowship Hall
   South Main Street
   Cookies and Wassail will be served in the Fellowship Hall this evening to all ticket holders.
   Horse-Drawn Carriage Ride located directly across the street from Fellowship Hall will be touring historic Woodstown - free to ticket holders.
   At 6:00 pm Terri Overby, David and Diane Dorrell, local musicians.
   At 7:00 pm the Pennsville High School Strolling Strings.
   Tickets will be available at this location beginning at 4:00 pm.

7. Friends Meeting House
   104 North Main Street
   This meeting house was completed in 1785. A need for more space required major renovations in 1849, and the newer section is clearly visible on the exterior brick walls. Eight original shutters with their handmade hinges and catches are still in place. The double doors and hardware are also original. In the annex tonight, The Salem County Art League will be hosting an art exhibit.
   At 6:00 pm Richmond Carlton, harpist.
   Tickets will be available at this location beginning at 4:00 pm.

8. Woodstown High School
140 East Avenue

Built in 1915, this structure originally housed grades 1-12. Since that time, there have been several additions – a new middle school in 1950; science classrooms, cafeteria and band room in 1960; a new gymnasium and major renovations throughout the school in 1983; updated/new ag science lab and one new additional science lab classroom in 2013. A new multi-purpose room for the middle school was completed in April of 2014. The following groups will be performing on the high school's Centennial Walkway steps:

At 7:00 pm Woodstown High School Chorus
At 7:30 pm Mary Shoemaker School Choir

9. Woodstown Middle School
15 Lincoln Avenue

From 4 pm to 7:00 pm, the middle school's Renaissance Club will serve a light dinner. Enjoy a homemade bowl of soup or chili and a salad or sandwich plus dessert and a beverage. Tickets cost $10.00 per person or $7.00 per person for a half sandwich.

10. Woodstown Central Railroad
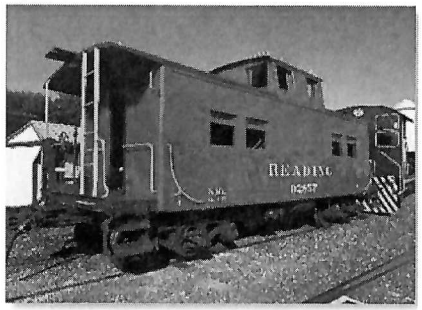
West Wilson Avenue



Join Woodstown Central Railroad as they host Santa on a restored 1937 red caboose from times gone by.

Having operated in our region as a successful freight transportation organization for nearly 30 years, SMS Rail Lines recently restored and reopened the Salem Branch as "Woodstown Central Railroad," and they are currently preparing to begin passenger rides across the countryside and back to an era of rail line luxury and travel. These historic rail lines, dating back to 1863, have a rich 160-year-old history as a part of life in and around Woodstown.

The staff of Woodstown Central Railroad is hosting Santa on the red caboose just in time to hear the children's Christmas wishes, and nearby they will share the meaning of Christmas with a live Nativity. The train will be located just off Route 40 on West Wilson Avenue. Stop by to visit Santa, view the live Nativity or chat with the railroad operators about their trains and plans.

11. Woodstown Opera House/ Blue Moon Theatre
13 West Avenue

The Opera House was built by Edward Bilderback Humphreys, a prominent merchant and real estate owner, for his son E.W. Humphreys. "The aged treasure is filled with a rich history dating back to 1885." The original theatre seated four hundred, including the balcony seats. The stage was built on a slope that was seven inches higher in the back. Under the stage one could find the dressing rooms for the performers. The Opera House opened on Christmas evening in 1885 with the first acts being "The Model Husband" and "The Debutante." The house was filled to capacity. In 1905, silent films were introduced, and the "talkies," films with sound, began in 1933. A fire closed the Opera House in 1939 after providing entertainment for 54 years. It reopened in 1949 with a group called the "Curtain Call Club" for a 15-year run until 1964. Besides theatre, the first floor of the Opera House was once the home of The Woodstown National Bank & Trust Company for a period of five years and the Post Office for 36 years. It also served as a meeting place for members of the Episcopal Church until 1951 when their church was completed.

Housed in the Opera House is the Blue Moon Theatre which was opened by Cheryl Stark in 2018. After construction the first show was held in March 2019. There was a full calendar of events showcasing musicals, theater productions, children's theater, music concerts and art shows. The theatre was closed during Covid, but there were some live performances at local wineries in 2020 and 2021. The theatre reopened at the Opera House in 2021.

The theatre provides superior entertainment through classic and contemporary stage productions and provides an atmosphere for local visual artists to share their works with the community.

It is essential to keep the arts alive and to share it with the next generation. The arts heal the mind, spirit and soul as well as entertain. Bringing this excellence to the stage is truly a work of art.

The Blue Moon Theatre is a place for all artists! It is a venue to showcase local art, a stage for those who have the passion to perform and a house for those who enjoy the art of live performance. We look forward to having you become part of our community as much as we look forward to becoming part of yours!

12. Steve and Trudy Parker
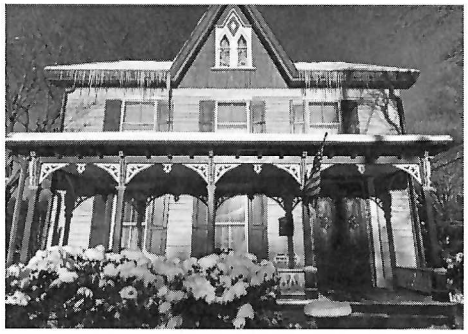
134 North Main Street



Josiah Davis built this house in 1850 for his daughters Mary Ann and Esther. It is a classic example of Carpenter Gothic architecture. The costly Gothic stone of Europe became Gothic wood in Victorian America, hence the term Carpenter Gothic. Key exterior features of this style are the peaked roof and the gingerbread trim. The house originally consisted of two large rooms, one downstairs and the other directly over it.

13. Brett and Michelle Shea
122 North Main Street
(EXTERIOR ONLY)

This circa 1906 Colonial Revival home, known as the Elwood Davis house, features a grand wrap-around porch. This beautiful home was featured in Design New Jersey Magazine in 2007. Three beautiful stained-glass windows adorn the staircase landing. They are original to the house. When the kitchen was renovated, two 1860s gaslights were added. A family room and deck were also added to the back of the house. Be sure to take note of the over 200-year-old Ginkgo tree in the side yard which towers over the house.

14. Jim Costabile
112 North Main Street

The three connecting townhouses were built in four stages by the original owners and family. The first stage (#108) was built in as a simple Colonial in 1770. The middle unit (#110) was added as a mercantile area with living areas on the second floor about the same time. There were two rooms added in the 1820s and used as additional living space for the extended family. Those two rooms now serve as the sitting and dining rooms for the third townhouse (#112). The large living room and second floor were added when the house was enlarged during the Victorian Period in 1860s. It is the Queen Ann style Victorian home that is open for the tour.

Visitors will enter the home from the stylized 'gingerbread' front porch into the living room. The original river barge, wide-plank, hardwood floors are covered by 18th and 19th Century Asian carpets which establish the room's color palate. The current home owner has used an eclectic combination of European, Asian, and American antiques with contemporary furniture. On display are works by George Imhof (1912-1984), and Oskars Skuskis (1906 -1982). Both artists were part of the Philadelphia School with their works shown at the National Gallery in Washington, D.C. and in New York City at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Philadelphia Art Museum. Along with Asian finds collected over the years is the work, The Red Cathedral by Anatole Kransnyansky (1930 -).

On display this evening in the sitting room is a wood engraving in color by famed artist, Salvador Dali (1904-1989). Entitled The Angel Boatman, it is from his Divine Comedy Series. The holiday decorations in this room are angels that celebrate the season and pay homage to the Dali piece. From there, guests will enter the dining room which is filled with pieces of Delft porcelain and hand crocheted snowflakes. Also in the dining room is a collection of 17th and 18th Century Japanese netsukes and 16th Century temple fans.

Just in case you are already looking for a warm-weather vacation, please take note of the unique acrylic painting by American icon, Peter Max (1937 -) entitled, Gone Fishing.

Please enjoy the area in the dooryard. The paintings on the barn and garage doors are by local artist, Gloria Morgan.

15. Historical Society
42 North Main Street

The Samuel Dickenson House, built in 1749, is one of the oldest homes in Woodstown and is currently the museum of the Pilesgrove-Woodstown Historical Society. The Historical Society was able to purchase the property with the proceeds from many Candlelight Tours. Here you will find a Hollinshead clock made in Woodstown in the 1770s by clockmaker George Hollinshead, whose shop was located on North Main Street across from the museum.

The Eldridges Hill Schoolhouse, located behind the museum, is also open this evening with displays of school-related items. A host will be there to greet you.

16. Ricardo & Sarah Reinbold
65 North Main Street

The original farmhouse was built by William W. Clawson in the 1850s and received extensive renovation in the Victorian style by Elwood Peterson after he purchased the home in 1892. Significant renovations were also made in 1972, including the addition of an enlarged kitchen, breakfast room, and in-law suite to the back of the house. The leaded glass windows, printed ceiling paper, hardwood floors are all reminiscent of earlier years' opulence. The present owners welcome you to this enchanting home.

17. Samuel Shivers House Museum
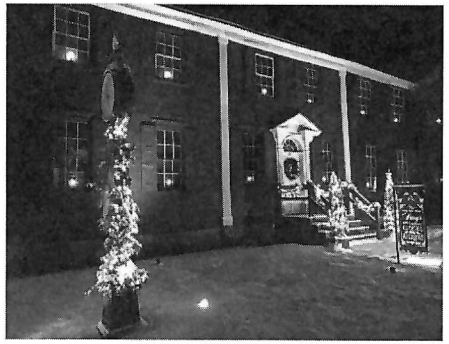
1669 Tavern (Sign of the Key)
1669 /1724/ 1813
68 North Main Street



Experience the holidays in 18th Century candlelit style at "the Old Red House". The Samuel Shivers House Museum stands as one of the most important, and oldest, continuously occupied dwellings in New Jersey as well as being home to the oldest tavern in the state dating back to 1669. The tavern operated for 57 years (1669-1726) providing meals and drink, a place for mail and news and overnight boarding for both the traveler and his equine transportation. The tavern was originally located where the Corner Bar now stands; however, in 1728 it was disassembled, transported 1.8 miles and joined to the Shivers House.

Restoration of the 1669 tavern (south end of dwelling) features the original restored cage bar, the oldest drive-up window in the state, an 11-foot wide original hearth and an original nail peened front door.

The tavern recently celebrated its 350th anniversary as New Jersey's oldest Colonial tavern. In commemoration of the 350th anniversary, a new line of premium reserve wines under the Shivers House label was released. These wines have been bottled in France, Germany and America for the collection.

The Samuel Shivers House Museum construction is comprised of four distinct centuries in the timber frame styles of the period. Its fabrication has been dated by primary and secondary white oak timber framing techniques and has been featured in three hard-bound historical books over the years. In addition, twelve newly discovered diaries from John and Samuel Shivers have been presented to the museum. In the future, these diaries will be transcribed and conserved. What has come to light from information in these diaries is that a summer kitchen was once located approximately 50 feet behind the Shivers dwelling. This kitchen was made out of timber frame, wattle and daub, with a cedar shake roof and 10-foot wide hearth fireplace. No remnants remain of this original summer kitchen. An archeological dig is possible in the near future.

The Samuel Shivers House Museum has been recognized as a paramount historic dwelling by the Woodstown Historic Preservation Commission, the Salem County Historical Society and recognized as a New Jersey State Historic Property as well as recognized as a national historic site by the United States Park Service.

18. Doug and Nan Hathaway
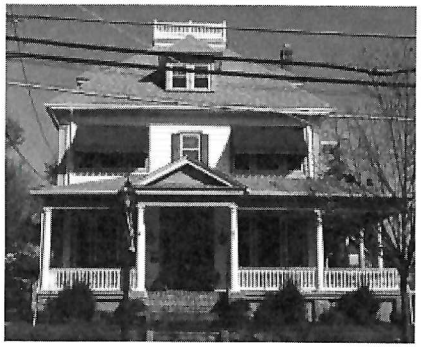
61 North Main Street
(EXTERIOR ONLY)



This home was built in 1904 by Dr. Samuel Irving Callahan, a local dentist during that time. Dr. Callahan had his office on the north side of the home with the rest of the property serving as his private residence.

This house is best known for the original chestnut woodwork which is found on all three levels. On the third floor is an original Victorian hat closet where Dr. Callahan's three wives stored their large Victorian hats. On the second floor there are transom windows and a Victorian intercom system, called a voice tube. The voice tube travels from one of the bedrooms to the front porch (located to the right of the front door).

There is original Victorian wallpaper, known as lincrusta, throughout the hallways and stairwells. A very unique feature is the bread warmer radiator in the dining room. In 1999 the kitchen was renovated and an additional family room and deck were added.

The owners invite all to visit their barn and yard. Much preparation has been done to transform this space into something special for the Candlelight Tour.

19. Lester and Shelia Robeson
160 East Avenue

Known as the B. Allen Basset House, c. 1929, this two and a half story Georgian style colonial house has a formal living room and dining room with an elliptical open staircase and glass enclosed sun porch. House is furnished with Queen Anne style furniture throughout. On display is a collection of American Brilliant Period (ABP) cut crystal, Imperial German antiques, Lladro figurines and a Dickens Village.

20. Ted and Kelly Kitchin
164 East Avenue

Built in 1937 as the residence of W.S. Calcott, referred to as Oakholm, this three-story home was patterned after the early Maryland farmhouse and contains eleven rooms, five baths, and five brick wood burning fireplaces. When the home was built, it featured ultramodern conveniences of its time, including air conditioning, a modern kitchen, radio operated garage doors, and a fireplace in every main room. In the home, three sets of stairs provide handy and immediate connection between the basement, first, and second floors. The home, designed by architect Harold M. Kaliz and built by Herbert Dodge, features special components such as secret doors and panels that allow for a unique and innovative style. The library, built entirely of white oak, sturdily constructed to bear the weight of bookshelves that line the room on all four sides. The tile roof was patterned to resemble shingles, and these tile shingles are the same material style used for restoration in Williamsburg, VA. Despite renovations, the home still retains its original windows, five fireplaces, trim panel designs, doors, pegged oak hardwood floors, and crown molding. The house is furnished with primitive décor and antiques including salesman samples and family heirlooms, such as an 18th century German grandfather clock that is one of only seven in the world.

The current owners, Ted and Kelly Kitchin, welcome you to celebrate the holiday season!

21. Don and Heather Bosco
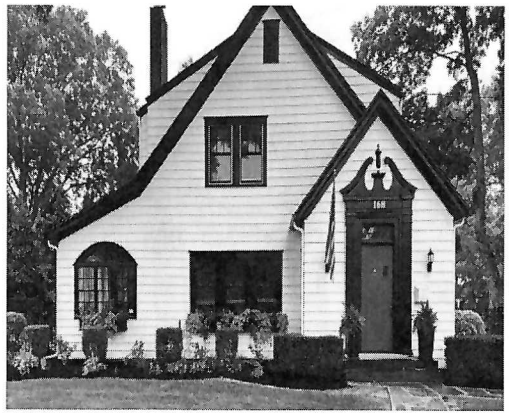
168 East Avenue



This 1926 storybook Tudor is owned by Don and Heather Bosco, this house is one of the few Tudors in Woodstown. This style home originated in the United States in the mid-19th Century and continued to grow in popularity until World War II. The Tudor style movement is technically a revival of the English domestic architecture, specifically Medieval and post Medieval styles from the 1600-1700s. These homes were designed for cold and rainy climates and were best suited for the Northern half of the United States. Tudor homes are recognizable by several distinguishable features: they have a steeply pitched roof, often front-facing gables with varying heights.

Current owners Don and Heather have done extensive updating but still try to maintain the 1920s charm of this storybook home.

22. Steve and Jody Digerness
110 South Main Street

The first written reference to mention "Woodstown" by name was in an ad by Jackanias Wood which was placed in a Philadelphia newspaper in 1766 for an equine stud service. The address given in this ad was "Woods Town" Salem County.

This stately brick house is known locally as The Wood House. It is fortunate that such a fine home, almost entirely original, still stands in Woodstown. The original and oldest part of the house was built in 1757 by Jackanias Wood. Unfortunately, most of the original building was destroyed by fire, but a small section on the left side of the house still stands and was incorporated into its reconstruction. The Flemish bond construction makes it easily distinguishable from the rest of the building. It is the only example of Flemish bond in Woodstown.

The front part of this brick colonial home was rebuilt on a grand scale in 1792. The Victorian front porch was a later addition. Wooden floors and staircases, glowing chandeliers and five original fireplaces still warm this historic home.

Come and enjoy our home with us and get into the holiday spirit. Many stories have been told about spirits in The Wood House. Maybe you will have a story of your own.

23. Fran and Patty Grenier
138 South Main Street

This home on the corner of South Main and Hunt Street was built by John and Hannah Wallace sometime between 1867 and 1873. Susan Richman purchased the home in 1873 for $3,000. It is believed that the home, at one time, had a turret above the entry that was destroyed by a fire in 1891. It was later repaired without the turret, and the attractive exterior has remained the same since.

During the Great Depression, the house was converted into a duplex as were other larger homes in Woodstown. The present owners, who purchased the property in 2001, are the third family to own this home since 1910. Be sure to look for the original light fixtures in the foyer and dining room. Once gas, they have been converted to electricity. A turn-of-the-century pier mirror, once located in an upstate New York train station, graces the front living room.

Woodstown by Candlelight 2022

We wish to thank all those who have given so generously of their time to plan our annual tour: committee chairpersons, officers and members of the Historical Society, and local businesses whose financial support provide us with programs, posters and tickets.

In addition, our thanks to all our volunteers: hosts and hostesses, cookie bakers, sign painters, map makers, ticket sellers, decorators, craftpersons, mini-bus drivers, musicians, businessmen, policemen, etc, etc.

Your enthusiastic support of our past tours has enabled us to purchase and continue the restoration or our Historical Society Museum on North Main Street and to restore the one room school house which was moved to the Museum property. Your continued support will further the restoration efforts and expand our collections.

A special thank you to all our homeowners who so generously opened their homes for our annual Woodstown by Candlelight.
